Facts & figures

The new Sodick European Headquarters is a superb purpose-built facility in the UK's Midlands manufacturing heartland which benefits from excellent transport links and making it easy to access by customers, prospects and agents alike. As the operational centre for sales service and market support there are already 50 staff employed on site, with additional space for further growth later.

One of the key benefits of the new building is its large, temperature-controlled showroom, with plenty of space for demonstrations, as well as extensive training facilities, not only for customer sales but also for dealer service education – an area of increasing importance as products become ever more advanced.
